Father Darkleaf

BY CALVIN ROBINSON

Martha Street after nice rains made everything look refreshed and ready for what's ahead. There seems to be no shortage of vegetables and things to eat. Friends have remembered us with their harvest. Thanks.

My friend, Thomas M. Richardson just came by to bring me a copy of the Toronto STAR, a splendid Canadian newspaper. Mr. and Mrs. Richardson, Mrs. Jesse Carwile, Mrs. Rachel Lawson, Mrs. Helen Anderson and Mrs. Ethel Lee Stanley are just back from a trip to Canada; Montreal, Toronto, The Thousand Isles, etc.

Crossed my fingers all morning Monday hoping the latest hurricane, Belle, would swing out to sea and miss Virginia. Remember the hurricane Hazel, which caught us on its fringe and did some damage.

* * *

Stopped to chat with a friend in front of a local super market and he was telling me that coons and groundhogs had invaded his garden, as well as blackbirds. Depleted the harvest of snapbeans and corn. Maybe he should set up a sound system and play the famous song "Bye, Bye Blackbird."

Useful information: The Bicentennial of the U.S.A. is also the bicentennial of the bicycle . . . that big dog of Vernon Bryant's is named Caesar . . . question: did we NY Yankee fans get over-confident . . . I was born in Norfolk, Va., and note the city is 234 years old and going strong.

Mrs. Bessie Seay (Snack Bar) sent me some brochures gathered on a recent trip to Waynesboro, Swannoa, etc. Beautiful part of beautiful Virginia.

My late Mother, in addition to being a musician, and church worker, loved gardens. I came across the manuscript of a talk she made to a Garden Club in 1954. Her subject was "Gardens in The Bible." Too long for this column, but she noted that when God made man He put him in a Garden. In Genesis it says, "God planted a garden eastward and a river went out of Eden to water the garden. So life on this Earth began in a garden. The first man was the first gardener. And in the Book of Esther we read that King Ahasueras gave a great garden party that lasted for a week. There were marble pavements, marble pillars, with lovely white, green and purple awnings with silver rings to protect the guests from the heat and gold and silver seats for the guests. Mother said that Jesus loved gardens. He often went to the Garden of Gethsemane to pray, and He promised the penitent thief on The Cross that he would be with Him in Paradise, and Paradise is a Persian word for Garden. Ah yes, and Mother wrote that William Byrd, the great Virginian, was buried in the beautiful garden at Westover. Alexander Pope wrote: "Whoever thinks a faultless piece to see, Thinks what n'er was, nor is, nor e'er shall be" but when God made the Earth He gave priority to Gardens. Is not "In The Garden" one of our great church hymns? Longfellow, the great poet, wrote of the twinkling stars at night . . . "Silently one by one in the infinite meadows of Heaven blossomed the lovely stars, the Forget-me-Nots of the Angels." And for those who fret under the pressures and problems of life, read Matt. 6:28. It is never too late to "Say it with Flowers" and who among us does not resolve that next year we will have a better garden. Thanks for reading and seeya next week.

Appomattox Teachers Attend VEA Leadership Academy

Four Appomattox County teachers met with 400 other Virginia educators at Longwood College, Farmville, Aug. 1-4 for a Virginia Education Association (VEA) Leadership Development Academy. The conference is designed to keep education associations abreast of what to expect in education for the coming year and how it might affect local school divisions.

"Conferences such as this one are of value when people take back and use the skills that they learn," observed Bob Stainback, executive director, Central Virginia UniServ, a service program for VEA affiliates. The academy teaches skills in communications, negotiations, political action, and instruction and professional development.

George Blanton, president-elect of the Appomattox County Education Association, said that each of the workshops provide invaluable tools that can be used within the education association. In particular, "the communications school helps educators to effectively share their concerns with the public."

VEA President Mary Hatwood announced two instructional conferences to be held in 1976-77. The fall meeting will deal with teacher education and certification. The spring conference will deal with the areas of child abuse and neglect and a teacher's responsibility in identifying and reporting such abuses.

Also attending the Leadership Development Academy were Ruth Watkins of Appomattox Primary School, Jean Mills of Appomattox Elementary School and Michaele Penn of Appomattox County High School.

Rev. Charles Vache, Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Southern Virginia; and Major W. W. Wallis.

New Parish Hall Under Construction At St. Anne's Episcopal Church

"Rose Hall", a long-awaited and much needed Parish Hall is under construction adjoining the rear of St. Anne's Episcopal Church in Appomattox. St. Anne's, located on Oakleigh Avenue in Appomattox, observed a Cornerstone Laying Ceremony for this new addition on Thursday, August 5, 1976, on the church grounds.

The Rt. Rev. Charles Vache, the Bishop Coadjutor of the Diocese of Southern Virginia, gave the invocation after which Mr. Ronald Spiggle, Junior Warden of St. Anne's, gave a brief history of the church. Major W. W. Wallis, Senior Warden, Mr. Horace Coleman, Chairman of the Building Committee, assisted by Rev. J. Harmon Smith, Vicar of St. Anne's and Rt. Rev. Vache, then placed the cornerstone which contained a brief history of the church, a register of all in attendance, names of church members, copies of the church and the building contract. Lunch was served on the church grounds following the ceremony and was attended by church members, former members, and friends from Appomattox and elsewhere.

The new building is being named "Rose Hall" after Rt. Rev. David Rose, current Bishop of the Diocese of Southern Virginia and will be used as a parish hall and educational facility.

St. Anne's Episcopal Church, originally consecrated in 1875 at Five Forks in Prince Edward County, was dismantled and moved to Appomattox in 1949 to serve as a mission church for Episcopalians in the area. Since that time, the building, fashioned after English country chapels, has maintained its original architecture, beamed ceiling, hand-hewn pews, and altar railings. The new addition has been designed in keeping with the original building.

J. E. Sears, Inc., of Appomattox is constructing the 60 foot x 35 foot building and members of the Building Committee are Horace Coleman, Chairman; Dr. J. A. Mathews, Robert Cordani, Howard Bryan and J. Wittpenn Smith. The Cornerstone Laying Committee was composed of Dr. J. A. Mathews, Chairman; Major and Mrs. W. W. Wallis, Miss Edith O'Brien, and A. E. Hopkinson.

Child Abuse Cases On The Rise In State

RICHMOND - A total of 30 children died in Virginia as a result of child abuse or neglect between July 1, 1975 and June 30, 1976, according to Virginia Welfare Commissioner William L. Lukhard.

During the same period, the State Welfare Department's Bureau of Child Protective Services recorded 21,061 reports of suspected child abuse or child neglect. More than 69 percent of the 21,061 reported cases proved to be valid abuse or neglect situations.

The more than 21,000 reported cases compares with 426 cases reported during the previous twelve months.

In Appomattox County 35 cases were reported and one death was reported.

The most typical abuse or neglect case handled last year was reported by a neighbor. The complaint was against the mother for lack of proper supervision. The child involved was usually three years old or younger.

"The dramatic increase follows the enactment of new child abuse legislation by the 1975 General Assembly," according to Commissioner Lukhard.

"The new law required, for the first time, a comprehensive system for reporting suspected cases of child abuse or neglect," Commissioner Lukhard said. "Also, each department of public welfare in the State is now staffed to investigate alleged abuse and neglect situations and to offer services to those families where abuse and neglect is suspected."

The 1975 child abuse legislation provided for a central registry in Richmond for all reported abuse and neglect cases. The legislation also established community advisory teams for child abuse and neglect and provided for 24-hour, seven-day-a-week reception and investigation of complaints.

An integral segment of the operation is a toll-free telephone number (800-552-7096) where complaints from throughout the State are received around the clock.

Each local department of welfare or social services in turn has a social worker assigned to investigate abuse and neglect complaints. The worker is available at any hour to investigate cases of apparent abuse or neglect. An initial investigation is made of all reports within the first 24 hours from the time of report.

In each case of suspected child neglect and abuse, the primary concern of the welfare department and the social worker is the safety of the child. The local agency will work with the parents in an attempt to resolve the frustrations that lead to the abuse or neglect.

Only in instances of severe abuse or neglect will a child be removed from the home. In those cases the social worker
